

ABSTRACT

A pattern can be projected on a resist film layer deposited on a semiconductor surface. The pattern can include structural elements having different feature sizes. Structural elements having feature sizes below a certain limit are not resolved on the resist film layer. The dimension of the corresponding resist pattern can be reduced and 5 the difference can be related to focus parameters of the exposure tool.